

Joke of the Week™

Three missionaries were captured in Africa and were in a cage in the middle of a vast throng of screaming warriors awaiting their fate. The King brings the first missionary from the cage and asks “Death or Bonga?”.

The missionary quickly answers “Bonga” as he knows that death means he will no longer be able to carry on his missionary work. The King cries “Bonga! Bonga! Bonga!” as a huge log is rolled into place before the King and the warriors. The first missionary is then strapped to the log butt up and all of the warriors bonga bonga bonga if you know what I mean and I think that you do. After the last warrior is finished the first missionary is thrown back in the cage and the next missionary brought to the King who asks him “Death or Bonga?”

This missionary has to think as he had just witnessed bonga to the first. But the first was still alive and able to carry on his missionary work so the second missionary too answers “Bonga.” The King cries “Bonga! Bonga! Bonga” and the warriors bonga, bonga, bonga on the second missionary who is thrown back in the cage afterwards.

Now the third missionary is in a pickle because even though the first missionary was still alive and able to carry on his missionary work, the second missionary would not be able to continue even if he too survived and the warriors were really going crazy now.

*Joke of the Week*TM

The third missionary begins to pray and when finished looks the King straight in the eye and answers “Let me be with my God. Give me Death.” The Kings cries “Death by Bonga! Bonga! Bonga!”